To give a modern and vivid portrayal of a school year in The Academy of Richmond County and The Junior College of Augusta -- to provide a source of pleasant memories for future reference. Although a labor of love, it has been no easy task to meet with originality, despite increased financial woes, the varied charges of the critics. Do not judge too harshly the result; the task was difficult.

FOREWORD

The Academy of Richmond County is the oldest educational institution in Georgia and the fourth oldest in the United States. The Theme, then, as you see, was inspired by the rich traditional background in front of which stands our school, one hundred and fifty-five years old. An attempt has been made to treat every phase of our school's great life, to treat it in a modern light and with modern decorative motif.

THEME

Twenty-three years, practically a quarter of A. R. C.'s century and a half of progress, he served us: our counselor and friend. May we, the sons and daughters of J. C. A. and A. R. C., by this modest gesture, show our appreciation of his invariable loyalty. We, the editors, dedicate this edition to our educator and friend—

I Love to Teach

I do not know that I could make entirely clear to an outsider the pleasure I have in teaching. I had rather earn my living by teaching than any other way. In my mind teaching is a life work, a profession, an occupation, it is a passion. I love to teach.

I love to teach as a painter loves to paint, as a musician loves to play, as a singer loves to sing, as a strong man rejoices to win a race.

The main aim of my happy days has been to become a good teacher just as every architect wishes to be a good architect, and every professional poet strives toward perfection.

--William Lyon Phelps.

This copy of the proceedings of the Board of Commissioners passed for laying out and selling the public or reserved lands at Augusta into "Acres Lots, &c." &c.

Augusta, 16 September, 1783.

The Board met, present

George Watton, Will. H. Haskins,
Joseph Cannell.

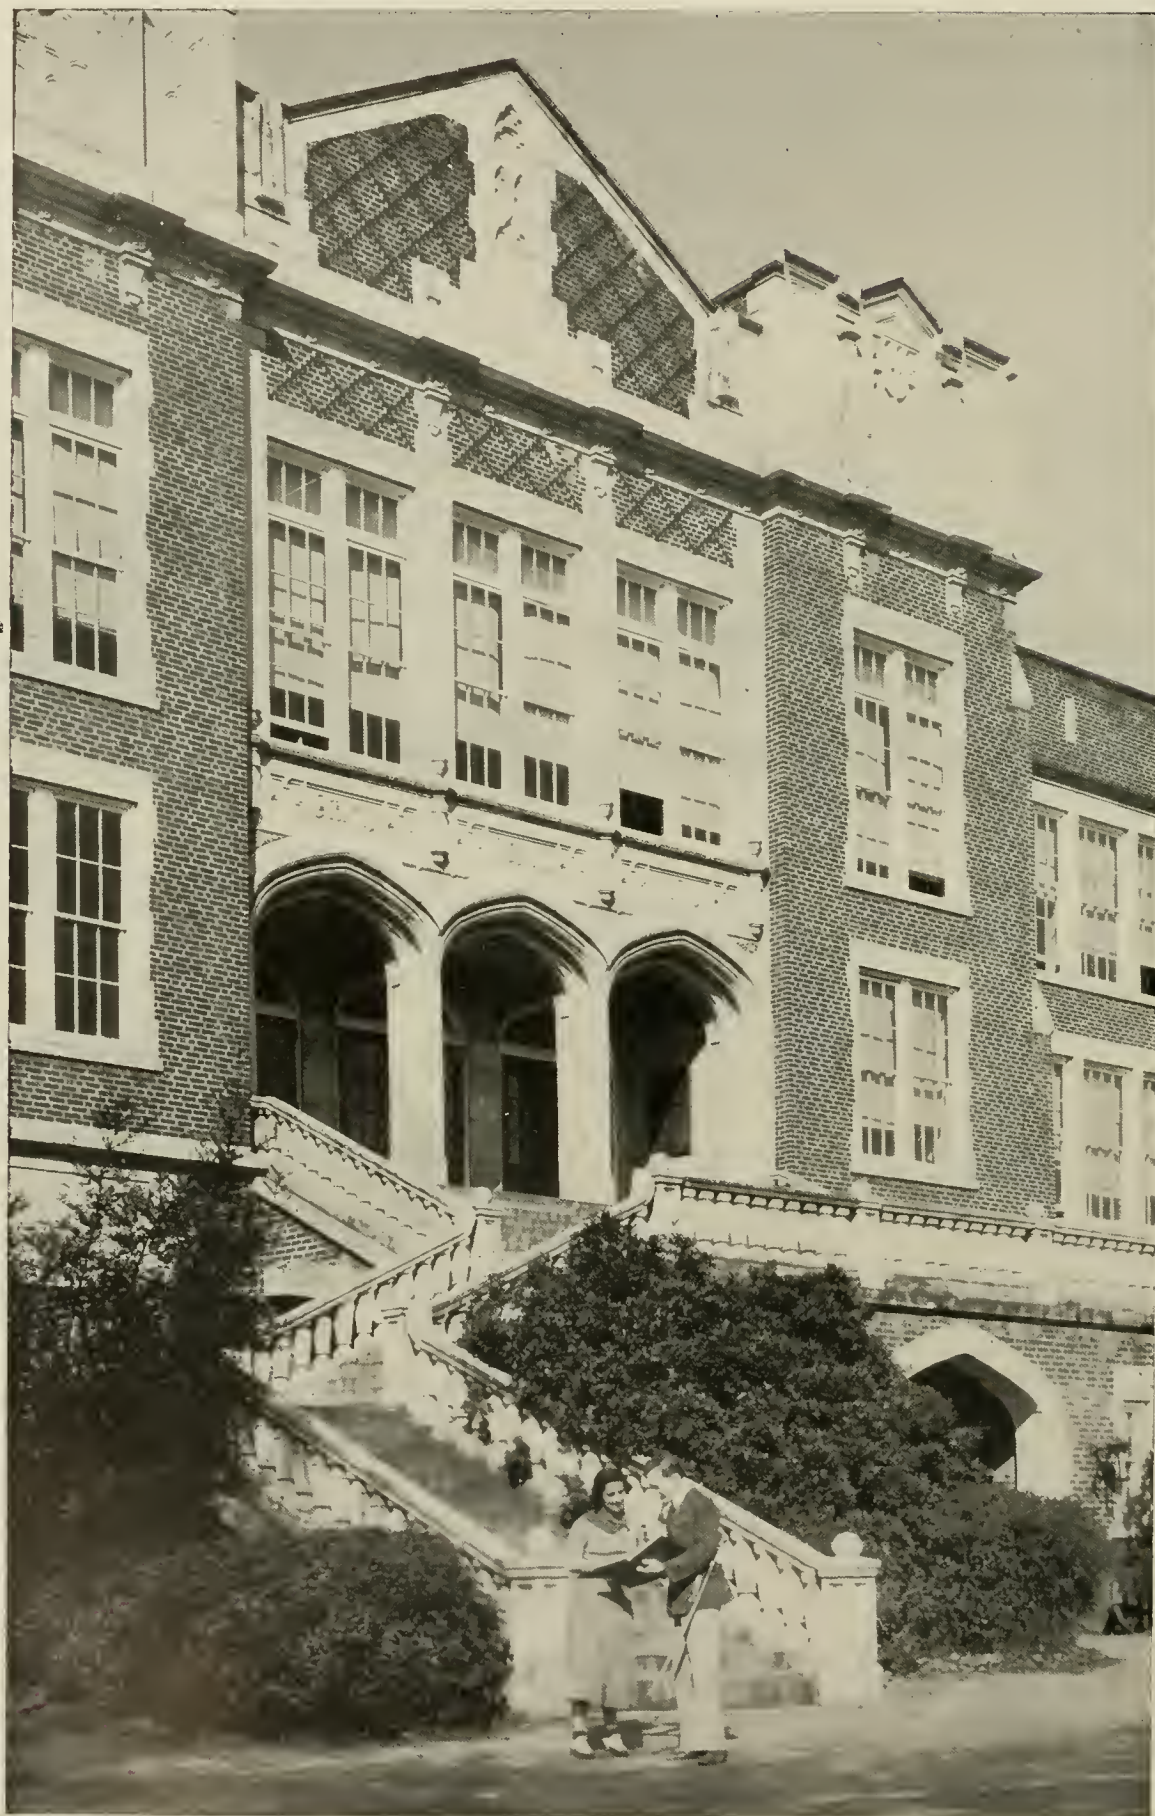

Ordered, That Mr. Robert Bonner be employed to secure a sufficient number of stakes, for cornering
the Lots as they are surveyed.

Resolved,

That a space be left next to the river, about feet wide, to be considered as part of the common belonging to the town. That the north ends of the lots be laid down in a line to be drawn as a parallel with the river; and to correspond with the lots, on that side, of the old town.

There being no plan of the old town now before Board Ordered, that such of the proprietors of lay lots or their agents, who are in town, be summoned to attend the board tomorrow at nine o'clock in the noon that they may be present at ascertaining the old lines, if choon.

One Hundred and Fifty Years in the Academy

The Academy of Richmond County

BY

CHARLES G. CORDLE

Before the American Revolution there was little or no effort made by the government of the colony of Georgia to provide educational facilities at Augusta, though there were a few private schools at various times. In 1780, however, the legislature of the State set up a board of five commissioners to lay off lots and streets in vacant lands above and below Augusta and instructed them to reserve a lot on Board Street for houses of "Public simenaries (sic) and Schools." But Augusta was soon recaptured by the British, and the commissioners accomplished nothing. Accordingly, on July 31, 1783, the legislature, then in session at Augusta, passed an act creating another board of commissioners. These commissioners were instructed to lay off public lands into one-acre lots and to offer them for sale at public outcry. From the funds thus raised they were directed to build a church and then to establish an academy or seminary of learning. In time these commissioners, or Trustees of Richmond Academy, came to exercise a variety of functions, which Joseph R. Lamar thus summarizes in his account of the Trustees of Richmond Academy:

"The original Act did not designate the duties of the Board, which subsequently paid little attention to the doctrine of ultra vires, and from the date of its creation exercised all manner of powers, many of them diverse, and, from our present standpoint, inconsistent and incongruous. It performed many functions—municipal, educational, ecclesiastical, commercial. It laid out the town, numbered the lots, named the streets, built the church, rented the pews, elected the rector, managed the academy, chose the teacher, bought the books, prescribed the course of studies. It regulated the cemetery, chose the sexton and fixed his fees. It owned the ferry and granted fishery rights; it controlled the public wharf, ran a lottery and repaired the river banks. It straightened the road from Sand Bar Ferry to Rae's Creek and narrowed Broad and Greene Streets. It furnished a State house for the legislature, and a court-house for the State and Federal judiciary. It provided the Masons with a lodge room, and the Governor with a residence. It paid filial duty to the University, and entertained for many months President Meigs, while he was waiting for the building in Athens to be completed"

So well did the Trustees perform their duties that the Academy of Richmond County is one of the few academies surviving to-day out of the 583 chartered by the State.

Having in the beginning nothing but land, the Trustees raised funds by the sale of lots and made plans to erect the church and the academy on adjoining lots where Fort Cornwallis had stood. There they did erect the church but for various reasons were unable to build the school. Finally, becoming impatient, they purchased two buildings on Bay Street between the present Third and Fourth streets and prepared at length to open the Academy on April 12, 1785. As the account in the Minutes of the Trustees reads:

"The Board having consulted upon the employment of a Master for the Academy, and Mr. William Rogers, late of the State of Maryland, having been well recommended, as being of good fame, and sufficiently learned in the sciences, the Board contracted with & appointed the said William Rogers, to be master thereof, in manner, and upon the terms following.

"That they assure and engage to pay said Wm. Rogers the sum of two hundred pounds, sterling, for one year, to commence from the second tuesday (sic) in April next, by quarterly instalments, in lieu of all other perquisites and considerations except the use of the buildings & Garden.

"For which the said Master shall give his whole time, shall teach the latin, greek and English languages, and the common practical branches of the Mathematics, according to the rules as established and practiced in the Seminaries of learning in the United States.

"Resolved, that, to indemnify the Board and the fund of the County, the following sums be demanded for education.

"1st. Children in the first stage, learning letters, orthography and reading, four dollars per quarter.

"2. Children in the second stage, learning the principles of english (sic) grammar and Cyphering, five dollars per quarter.

"3. Persons in the third stage, learning the latin and greek (sic) language, or any branch of the methamatics (sic), ten dollars per quarter.

"Resolved that the said Master be empowered to employ a teacher of the scholars in the first degree, for a sum not exceeding fifty pounds, for one year, subject to the control of the Board."

In accordance with the resolution just mentioned, John Griffin was elected teacher. Before many months he found it impossible to live on his salary of fifty pounds a year, and the Trustees raised it to seventy-five. The Trustees soon after employing the teachers had placed with a local merchant an order for text books in languages, mathematics, history, and geometry, and a few scientific and mathematical instruments.

As Augusta was but a small town near the frontier, the school grew but slowly. In 1789 it had only forty-nine pupils in the three classes. On May 20, 1791, President Washington, then on his southern tour, visited the Academy and was received with the usual fulsome orations and declamations. Among the speakers was Augustin Smith Clayton, then seven years and four months old. The president was so well pleased with his reception that on his return to Philadelphia he sent to the young orators a group of books as a memorial of his esteem. To young Clayton was sent a copy of Sallust's Catiline and Jugurthine Wars. But despite the blessing of presidential approval, the Academy did not prosper; the buildings were decaying; funds were running short; and at the end of the year 1798 the school was closed.

Though forced by circumstances to close the school, the Trustees kept in mind the idea of reopening the Academy in a more commodious building in a more convenient location. Accordingly, they began work on a brick building on the southern side of Telfair Street between Centre and Washington streets. By November 1, 1802, the work was so far advanced that the school could be reopened. In the new building the pupils were to study in the first class, English grammar, oratory, composition, geometry, algebra, trigonometry, surveying, logic, natural and moral philosophy, astronomy, Latin, and Greek; in the second class, reading, writing, arithmetic, English grammar, oratory, and geography; and in the third class, reading, writing, arithmetic, English grammar, and oratory. The new Academy so prospered that by 1815 there were employed two teachers in the classical department, two others in the English department, and three in the female department, which was assigned to a distinct part of the building, and which was dismissed at a different time from the boys' department.

after receiving authorization from the State legislature, opened July 1, 1816, a branch academy on the Sand Hills. At first this school was kept open only during the summer months, the rector of the Academy changing his residence to the Sand Hills. Eventually the school, which became known as the Sand Hills Academy or the Summerville Academy, was kept open practically the whole year. After the War for Southern Independence it was turned over to a separate body of Trustees. It continued in operation until a few years ago. Its site is now the location of the William Robinson School.

After 1815 the Academy of Richmond County continued its rapid growth until in the middle 'thirties it reported a total enrolment of 437, a number not again attained until nearly a century later. At that time the course in the classical department, which prepared for the sophomore and even the junior class at the University of Georgia, consisted of Latin and Greek, together with arithmetic, algebra, geometry, trigonometry, oratory, and composition. There was a boarding department in the Academy building in charge of a teacher. Boarding pupils were kept under strictest supervision, not even being permitted to leave the campus without special permission.

In 1850 the Academy Trustees began seriously to consider raising the Academy to the rank of a college, to be known as Tubman College. They secured authorization from the legislature; but they were disappointed in the expectation of an annuity of ten thousand dollars from the city of Augusta and reluctantly abandoned the project.

After 1850 the Academy rapidly declined in numbers. For two years, it seems, the school was closed for repairs. During that time the Reverend John Neely conducted in the building the Augusta High School for Boys. When the Academy reopened in 1856, there were only two teachers; one of these dropped out in 1860 for lack of students; finally in 1863 the Academy building was taken over by the Confederate government as a hospital, and the school was closed for several years.

In the early Academy the school year ran from April 12 to April 12. Between 1808 and 1888 the school and calendar years coincided. Still later the scholastic year began October 1 and ended the following August. At first there was a vacation period of two weeks at the end of each quarter; after 1807 the month of September took the place of the quarterly vacation. In 1818 the vacation was lengthened by the addition of the last two weeks in August. The hours, too, would appear long to the student of to-day. Between October 1 and April 1 the school opened at eight-thirty and closed at five; between April 1 and October 1 the hours were from seven-thirty to six. Both summer and winter a dinner recess was given, lasting from twelve to two-thirty. Not until about 1880 was the single session introduced, which closed at two o'clock.

At first there were few formal rules. But by 1819 necessity had caused the formulation of a formidable set of rules of conduct, which cover five typed pages.

This code not only regulated the activities of pupils during school hours but also attempted to prescribe their behavior off the campus and even on Sundays. Pupils, according to these regulations, were required to assemble on the campus not more than fifteen minutes before the opening of school. While waiting, they were forbidden to play unless special permission were given. When the doors were opened, the students were to march into the building by classes with the most advanced grades in front. When a teacher entered a classroom, pupils were to rise and face towards the center. Whenever a teacher passed a group of pupils at play, the latter were to suspend their activities until the teacher was gone. If a student damaged shrubbery or building, he was to pay for the damage; if the culprit could not be discovered, the cost of repairs was apportioned among all the students. Corporal punishment was forbidden except for obstinate and continued violation of rules. Instances of inferior delinquency were to be entered in a special book and reported at stated intervals to the Trustees. A pupil who neglected his opportunities was to be reported to the Trustees and also to be given another quarter to show improvement; if he still would not learn, he was to be barred from the Academy and not be readmitted until his parent or guardian presented satisfactory evidence of his reformation. Outside of school hours all pupils were required to maintain a respectable deportment toward all persons. They were forbidden to divulge outside school what took place within the school. They were to attend religious services on Sunday and might be required to present a certificate of such attendance. Persons habitually immoral were barred from the Academy. Immoralities such as profane swearing, lying, theft, drunkenness, Sabbath breaking, fighting, cock fighting, obscene language, and frequenting vicious company were liable to the censure and reproof of teachers; and incorrigibility in this regard was punishable by expulsion.

From two to four times a year public examinations were held, which might last two or three days. For them public notice was given in the newspapers, and tickets might be issued to the students taking part. Specially invited guests such as President Washington on his visit to Augusta, the governor and his council (when Augusta was the capital of the State), the mayor and the city council, and other distinguished citizens attended. During the examination questions might be asked by the teacher, by a committee of the Trustees, or even by citizens in the audience. Under such circumstances, as was natural, some students would play hookey. To put an end to this practice, the Trustees voted to bar from the Academy all students absent from examination without adequate excuse. The examination would be followed by an "exhibition" consisting of orations, declamations, and even dramas. Prizes were awarded for the best performances; and if all the students did well, they might be rewarded by a holiday of one day or even a week.

Tuition was regularly charged, even for many years after the Richmond County Board of Education began to operate the Academy. Usually, too, a fee of fifty cents or a dollar was charged during the two winter quarters for supplying fuel.

From August, 1863, until the fall of 1867 the Academy building was beyond the control of the Trustees. At first the campus was used as the site of a Confederate military hospital. Temporary wards were built on the grounds, and the academic building itself was used as headquarters. When Federal troops occupied Augusta, they took over the hospital facilities and soon began to use the Academy building as military headquarters. This use continued until the fall of 1867, when at last the building was returned to the Trustees.

Now serious attempts were made to reopen the school. Col. George W. Rains, an eminent engineer and chemist, who had erected and managed the Confederate powder mill in Augusta, was chosen as regent. With him were associated a number of ex-Confederate officers, and the Academy was reopened January 1, 1868. In 1870 there was a reorganization; the post of regent was abolished, all the professors were made equal in rank, and Col. Rains was made chairman of the faculty. There were then two departments, the scientific, and the classical and English. The pupils in the scientific department had the advantage of the use of Col. Rains' collection of scientific apparatus plus that of the Medical College of Georgia, where Col. Rains was professor of chemistry. Under these conditions the school grew rapidly; in the year 1873-1874 it enrolled a total of 223 students. In the next year a commercial school was added. In 1875 the teachers made an arrangement with the Richmond County Board of Education whereby the Academy was to serve as the county high school, the pupils were to be admitted free of charge to their parents, and the teachers were to be paid from county funds for the high school pupils. But this arrangement lasted only a short time. In 1882 a military department was organized under Captain J. O. Clarke as instructor. The upper west hall of the Academy was fitted up as an armory. After a few years, however, the military department was abolished.

In 1808 George P. Butler, a graduate of the Richmond Academy, returned to the institution as teacher and commandant of the revived military department. For many years before and after his coming the student-body fluctuated in numbers between one and two hundred. In 1909 the Academy Trustees entered into a contract with the Richmond County Board of Education whereby the latter was to pay the salaries of the teachers, while the Trustees used the income of their funds for upkeep and equipment. Now the Academy began to grow rapidly, especially when tuition was removed a few years later. A fifth year, of college grade, was added, so that students after completing it could enter the sophomore class at the University of Georgia and the Georgia School of Technology. When the old City Hospital was abandoned for more commodious quarters toward the western part of the city, the hospital building reverted to the Academy Trustees. The building was converted into a dormitory, which housed about thirty boarding pupils in charge of a teacher. As the Academy continued to grow, rooms in the dormitory had to be converted into classrooms, until at length the structure ceased to be used as dormitory. The old Medical College building, which also reverted to the Trustees, was transformed into a technical building, where shopwork, drawing, and commercial subjects were taught.

As the Academy reached the limit of its quarters, proposals were made to erect a $200,000 structure on the Campus on Telfair Street. For lack of money this plan was never carried out. At length a county bond issue was voted, from which $300,000 was to be used for erecting a new Academy. The Trustees agreed to add to this sum $100,000 which they had invested. Various sites were proposed, including the location of Paine College and the site of the present aviation field. Through the efforts of Major Butler a site was selected to the west of Baker Avenue, in what was then a swamp. The city donated the land. The county road force drained and filled in the swamp. An enormous building, sufficient, it was supposed, for all requirements for at least twenty years, was erected. Shrubbery was planted around the building and on the campus, which was secured through the voluntary efforts of students soliciting contributions among the people of Augusta. In 1925 the Richmond County Board of Education, with the authorization of the

Present Richmond Academy
Building. Opened in 1926.

State legislature, founded The Junior College of Augusta by the addition of another year of college work to that already given in the Academy. To the new Academy building both the Academy of Richmond County and The Junior College of Augusta removed in the fall of 1926. The enrollment of both institutions increased so rapidly that the two study-halls had to be cut up into classrooms, and the auditorium had to be used as a study-hall. In the scholastic year 1936-1937 there were in the Academy 1049 students, and in the Junior College 256, 1305 students in all in a building planned for a thousand. At length in the fall of 1937 the Board of Education, with the assistance of P.W.A. funds from the federal government, let the contract for the erection of a twelve-room addition on the western side of the present Academy building, which, it is hoped, will be ready for occupancy in the fall of 1938. If the present growth of the Academy continues, in a few years even these expanded quarters will be outgrown.

"A" Varsity Football

The Musketeers launched their 1937 football season with Marist, of Atlanta, here in Augusta, the first game played under the arc lights. The Marist boys scored first, but the home team came back, to pull out with a 7-7 tie. The closing minutes of play saw the ball in the Atlanta boys' possession on Richmond's one-yard line, after four Marist tries had been successfully repulsed.

In the second game of the season, also on Augusta soil, the Academy displayed a strong running attack to rout the Columbus High eleven 33-6. Over two thousand rain-drenched spectators saw Richmond chalk up 18 first downs to Columbus' 4.

Charleston High invaded Augusta for the third game and tallied early. With the score 20-6 against them at the end of the half, the Musketeers made a gallant effort in the closing minutes to overtake the Charlestonians, but Charleston High finally emerged with a win of 27-20.

For the fourth game of the '37 season, the A. R. C. took the road to Atlanta, to engage the powerful Tech High Smithies. Richmond scored two touchdowns in the last period, but lost, 31-12. Cole's passing featured the latter part of the game, one score resulting from a 33-yard pass to Tarte, and the other, coming on the last play, with a pass to Kelly.

The following Friday night, Savannah High trounced the Musketeers 19-7. Savannah scored first on a fumble, but at the half the score read 7-6 in favor of the Augustans. Unable to muster a sustained scoring punch, Richmond was compelled to accept a 19-7 defeat.

At the halfway mark of the sixth game, the Musketeers were trailing 6-7, but Luckey's charges put on a driving finish to down the Commercial High eleven 18-7. Smarting from the sting of an early score, Richmond came back to score in the second period. The Academy opened an aerial attack shortly after the beginning of the second quarter, and from this point on it was Richmond Academy's game. Dick Kelly was the spearhead of the Musketeer offense.

Columbia High added another scalp to her belt by dropping Richmond 7-6 in a bitterly contested game on a soggy field in the Augusta stadium. Both teams scored early and both Columbia and A. R. C. accounted for seven first downs.

In the annual Thanksgiving and final game the Lanier Poets, by off-tackle smashes and concerted line plunges, defeated Richmond here in Augusta to the tune of 26-7. Richmond's only marker being registered by Kelly, who raced 58 yards to a touchdown. Lanier dominated in almost every department of play, scoring 12 first downs to Richmond's 7.

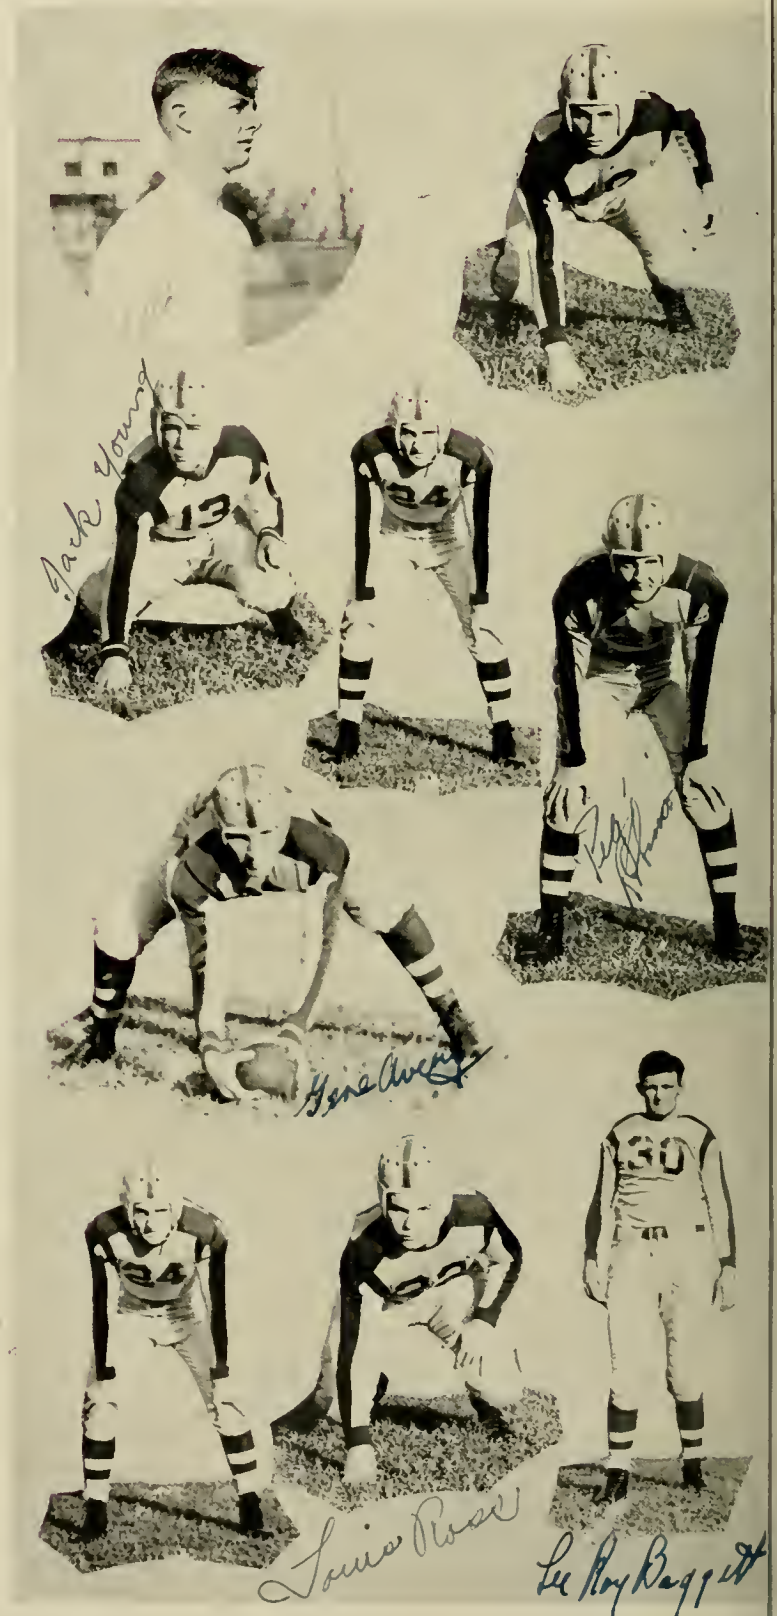

The Musketeer gridders remained idle during the week following their first game, as the game originally scheduled with Brunswick was called off because of an epidemic of paralysis in Brunswick, where the issue was to be decided.

"B" Varsity Football

The "B" Varsity opened this year by defeating Graniteville High by a score of 39 to 0. Every man on the team saw service in piling up this score.

In the second contest the junior cadets found themselves up against a stronger opponent in the persons of Lincolnton High. The B team managed to win by a score of 13 to 7.

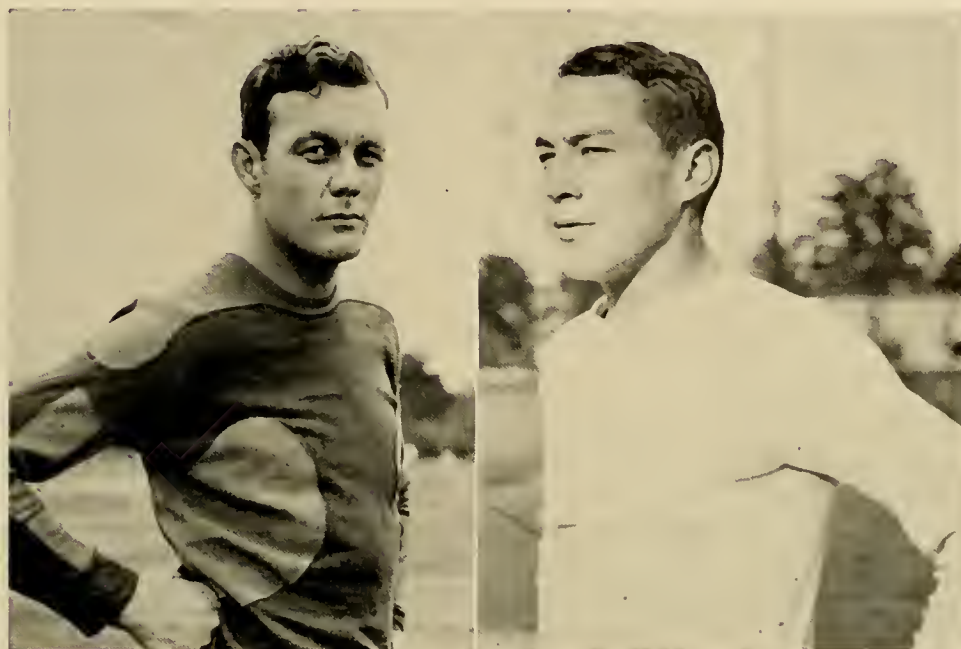

The "B" Varsity, after a week's rest, took the field against Warrenton. Although this game seemed to be all in favor of the "B" team, the game ended in a 0 to 0 tie.

The following week the boys again took their stand against Langley-Bath. The "B" players still lacking the final punch had to accept a 0-0 tie in this game.

After a free week-end the team again took to the field in the annual game with Waynesboro. They showed the punch that they had lacked in the two preceding games by winning with a score of 26-0.

Returning to home soil the "B" team encountered stiff opposition in the North Augusta squad. Since both teams were undefeated before this game, a large crowd was in attendance to see what promised to be one of the best "B" Varsity games of the season. After an early start by North Augusta, blocking a kick and scoring, in the first period, the "B" team managed to come back and gain 2 points from a safety. In the third period, after fine playing on the "B" Varsity's part, the score was set up to "B" Varsity 8, N. A. 6. After this scoring drive the "B" team threatened several times to score again, but every time suffered from bad breaks. The N. A. team did threaten seriously after the half.

The North Augusta game marked a climax of a very successful season for the "B" Varsity, which, under the careful supervision of Coach Ewing and Assistant Charles Stubb, had completed its season undefeated and tied only twice.

The 1938 A. R. C. basketball team enjoyed quite a successful season under Coaches Wendell Sullivan's and Roy Rollin's expert guidance, fashioning wins over Commercial, twice, Benedictine, and Savannah in the G.I.A.A. Tournament. Along with these victories, the Musketeers added to their belts the scalps of Columbia High, Anderson High, Bishop-England, Thomson, and numerous others.

For the last few years, the Academy basketball quintets have been eliminated in the annual Trade District Tournament held at the Y.M.C.A., but this year it was a different story. The Purple and Gold outclassed practically all of the thirty-five teams entered, administering sound thrashings to McCormick, 48-13; Ellenton, 43-17; Wrens, 23-21; and Gibson, in the finals, 24-14. Harry Parrish was the high-point man of the tournament.

In the G.I.A.A. tournament in Macon, the Academy was scheduled to meet Savannah High in the first round. The home-town boys proceeded to avenge themselves on the Blue Jackets for the two previous beatings, by licking the Geeches 37-34, and thus putting the pre-tournament favorites out of running before they knew what it all about. The Musketeers went on to rout Commercial 38-20, but met defeat at the hands of Jordan. Monroe defeated the A. R. C. in the play-off for third place, 48-28; so our boys wound up in fourth place—a far more creditable showing than has been made in the G.I.A.A. Tourney by the Augusta teams in quite a number of years.

In addition to this, Harry Parrish and Leroy Baggett were selected on the all-G.I.A.A. team, an honor which, likewise, has come to old Alma Mater only this year. Lum Yee, Billy Goatley, who received a medal for his being among the first ten picked from the teams defeated in the first round of the Gold Medal Tournament, Clinton Strother, Tim Gleason, Jones Epps, Roy Krouse, Jimmy Cooper, and, of course, "Wormy" Markwalter, the manager, also deserve mention for their sterling performance the year round.

After the season had officially closed, the Musketeers entered the Gold Medal Tournament. They drew a bye in the first round, but were defeated 36-17 in the quarter finals by the strong Friedman five.

On the whole, the A. R. C. basketballers had a very successful season, and, though most of the regulars will graduate this year, we sincerely hope and believe that our '39 squad will come through with flying colors. So, good luck, boys, and give 'em hell!

Tom Boeckman

Coach Roy E. Rollins

Since 1932-33 the Junior College boys have had no athletics except golf and tennis, but this year they went out to get a basketball team and got it. Though unable to schedule games with other junior colleges the boys won the fast city league and the Y.M.H.A. Tournament, entered the annual Gold Medal Tourney, soundly thrashed the Evans Athletic Club on both the local and the Evans boards by identical scores, and smothered the Avera A. C., 60-11.

In the first game of the season the Collegians lost to a sharp-shooting Cloer Lumber Co. outfit, but cinched the first half of the city loop by winning all the remaining games. J. C. A. walloped the Friedman outfit 40-34, and, to prove that this game was not an upset and that the supposed "greenhorns" could really play basketball, they "laid one on" the favored Sporters twice in succession, to win the first-half championship. The Purple and White then played the Dr. Pepper Bottling Co., winners of the second half, for the city crown. Junior College whipped Dr. Pepper in the first game of the play-off 35-20, and, the following night, in a thrilling battle that ran into an extra period, copped the City Championship by the score of 22-21.

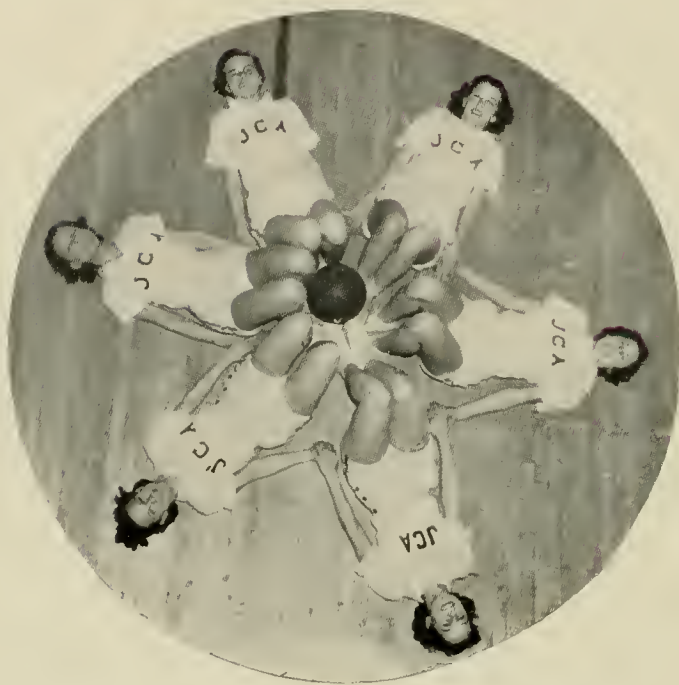

In the Y.M.H.A. Tournament, the fighting Junior College five ousted the Y.M.H.A. 37-27, and went on to humble their old rivals, the Sporters, 37-26, and win the tournament.

The J. C. A., like the Academy five, drew a bye in the first round, and then engaged the Sandersville Athletic Club. This game was packed with thrills from start to finish, with the outcome in doubt until the final whistle, which saw the scrapping J. C. A. nosed out by a lone field goal, 40-38, to close the season.

The success of the Junior College basketball team is very largely due to Roy Rollins, the playing coach. He was selected all-city forward in the Y.M.H.A. Tournament, along with Preston Towns, chosen all-city center, an honor which they both richly deserved. In addition, Rollins was picked as an all-tournament guard in the Gold Medal classic, the third outstanding player of the tournament, and was among the first ten, chosen from teams defeated in the first round. Towns was also one of these ten players. Gordon Martin, "Cue Ball" Stulb, Herbert Stelling, Bill Kennedy, Elliott Poferance, O'Neal Cave, Tom Boeckman, and Pop Newman also deserve credit for such a successful season this year. We hope you boys following these will keep up the good work and put old Junior College on top of the heap.

Charlie Stulb

J. C. A. Girls Basketball

The Junior College girls' sextet got off to a slow start, dropping the first game to Harlem, but from then on, J. C. A. was on the big end of the score in all but one game. This game was a hard fought, tightly contested skirmish, with Dan Cohen winning out 33-39, after the local girls had already licked them twice earlier in the season, by the scores of 30-13 and 34-28. Coach Charlie Royston's Jaguars practically walked away with the girls' city loop, and, in doing so, exhibited a sure-fire passing attack that virtually outclassed the other teams. The Junior College co-eds smothered Mount St. Joseph 36-11 in their final game on the Y.M.C.A. court, to win the Girls' City Championship.

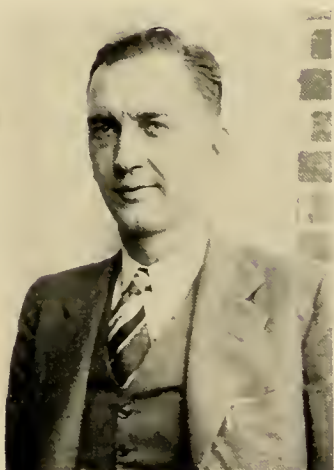

The Jaguars should certainly be commended on such a creditable showing this season, their first year under Coach Royston, who took the place of Albert Simpson, last year's coach. The girls responsible for this impressive record are: Anne Stulb, Beverly Newberry, Mildred Thiot, Allen Cutts, Jane Paquette, Frances McAllister, Betty Farr, Marion Maxwell, Mary K. Reiser, Harriett Serotta, Ann Waterston, Dot Dickerson, Ponder Brown, and Melba Carstarphen.

TRACK

1937 Season

The 1937 A. R. C. track team was composed of almost entirely new men, only three letter men, Prouty, Long, and Sneed, returning from the preceding year's squad. In spite of this lack of experienced track men, Coach Langston Bolton molded a well-balanced team from the '37 Musketeer hopefuls.

The Purple and Gold schedule included the Lanier High Poets, Columbia High, Louisville, and Wrens. In the inaugural meet of the season, Richmond walloped Wrens, then proceeded to administer a licking to the Louisville boys; but dropped the next one to Columbia High, and lost to the powerful Macon team in a hard-fought meet that furnished thrills from start to finish.

At the close of the season, Coach Bolton awarded a much larger number of letters than he had given in any of the previous seasons.

1938 Season

The 1938 season promises a real track team, one that will give these G.I.A.A. teams plenty of trouble. The '38 Musketeers lost the first meet in a bitterly contested battle on the South Carolina field, but literally smothered an outclassed Wrens team on the local field. Two weeks later Richmond journeyed to Atlanta and handed G.M.A. a defeat that established the home team as a strong contender for the G.I.A.A. title.

The next week found the Musketeers engaging the Lanier High Poets from Macon. This duel meet proved to be a very close one even though the Academy boys lost.

This week they will meet Boys High of Atlanta, on the local grounds. We're all right behind you, boys, so go to it—wallop them and show this team whos who in Macon at the G.I.A.A.!

1938 Hearst Trophy Team

The 1938 Hearst Trophy Team was ranked first among the high schools of the United States and one of its members, J. T. Hains, Jr., was named individual national champion of the R.O.T.C. units. Each boy will receive a medal for the Corps Area Match and a medal for the National Match. The team will be presented with a silver plaque for the Corps Area Championship and a silver cup for the National Championship.

For three consecutive years, our rifle team has won the Corps Area Match. The winning of the national championship came as a result of a process of development. The boys have been shooting more consistently from year to year and becoming more confident because of their excellent training.

All the members of the rifle team began their rifle marksmanship under the coaching of Sergeant Wm. C. McGee. This year, however, the team was coached by Sergeant J. R. Wilkerson.

The members of the rifle team are: Jack Hains, Abner Covar, Bill Jakes, Theo Balk, and Riley Fulmer.

Stunt Night

Chosen from numerous skits as winner of Stunt Night was the Satirical Style Show enacted by the Hangover Club. Immediately after the actual fashion revue by the Junior College co-eds and Tubman seniors, the members of the Hangover organization of the Academy presented a parody on the preceding number. Taking part in the style show were the following charming young ladies: Miss Howard McIntosh, who wore a flutery afternoon dress; Miss Willie Merritt, attired in a flowered chiffon tea gown; Miss Fish Wiggins, who appeared in a startlingly modern swim suit; Miss Julian Baldowski, who wore gayly striped beach pajamas; Miss Tom Blanchard, attired in a flowered chiffon evening frock; and Misses Jack Beardman and Alfred Battey, who displayed what the well-dressed girl would wear to formal evening affairs. Master of ceremonies, managing the production with a masterful hand, was Paul Bailey, one of the officers of the organization.

The purpose of Rho Chi is to bring together those students interested in the field of medicine in order to exchange ideas and to encourage the social contact that makes college life one of pleasant memories.

The current year marks the eighth anniversary of the organization. Many parties and dinners have made it a socially successful year and several lectures on medicine, subjects by the members and prominent men associated with medicine, have made it as equally educational.

I'm hoping you'll have all the luck
in the world.

Nationally Known Figures at A. R. C.

BILLY LEE

Billy, the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Bothwell Lee, is the youngest solo pilot in the United States. He was recognized as such some time ago by the American Magazine. At the age of ten he made his solo flight in a Taylor Cub from Daniel Field.

JACK BOARDMAN

Jack, the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Boardman, has accomplished national recognition as a skeet expert. The following is his records: Augusta Skeet Club Championship, 99 out of a possible 100; Class Championship at Spartanburg, 146 out of a possible 150; Class A Championship at Augusta, 96 out of a possible 100; Southern Championship at Atlanta, 94 out of a possible 100; Introductory Atlanta City Skeet Championship, 49 out of a possible 50; Dixie Skeet Championship, 95 out of a possible 100; Southern States Small Bore Championship, 48 out of a possible 50; Piedmont Skeet Championship, 282 out of a possible 300; Class A Piedmont Championship, 285 out of a possible 100; Augusta Skeet Club Team Shoot High, 96 out of a possible 100; Southeastern Skeet Championship at Jacksonville, 99 out of a possible 100; Southeastern Small Bore Championship at Jacksonville, 47 out of a possible 50; All Georgia Five Man Team; National Championship, 3rd Place, 98 out of a possible 100; Holder of Southeastern Long Run, 162 straight.

J. T. HAINS, JR.

Jack, the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Hains, was named individual champion of R.O.T.C. units in the United States. His excellent score of 398 out of a possible 400 helped the Academy Rifle Team to win the 1938 Hearst Trophy.

When eight score years
Our thoughts and words
Will others wonder
If, perchance, we shall Ah, may the kindly
Our worthy walk in Ennobled by her Adding other years

years have added to the scroll deeds, and we've joined the endless files, what zeal burned in our souls,
to at length the Happy Isles?
fates at last reveal Alma Mater's glorious name, faith and her ideal,
and brighter luster to her fame.
